

FEATURES

GDP Is the Wrong Tool for Measuring What Matters

By Joseph E. Stiglitz

Galileo's Lessons for Living and Working through a Plague

By Hannah Marcus

Animals Use Social Distancing to Avoid Disease

By Dana M. Hawley and Julia C. Buck

How Oak Trees Evolved to Rule the Forests of the Northern Hemisphere

By Andrew L. Hipp, Paul S. Manos and Jeannine Cavender-Bares

How Scientists Solved One of the Greatest Open Questions in Quantum Physics

By Spyridon Michalakis

Humans Evolved to Be Friendly

By Brian Hare and Vanessa Woods

How Climate Change Strategies That Use Biomass Can Be More Realistic

By Eric Toensmeier and Dennis Garrity

DEPARTMENTS

FROM THE EDITOR

Quarantine Lessons from Lobsters, Guppies, Finches and Galileo

LETTERS

Readers Respond to the April 2020 Issue

ADVANCES

Model Suggests Toxic Transformation on Venus 🔑

Buried Skeletons Reveal Tsunami Threat in East Africa 🔑

Construction Process Builds Brain Circuits

Red Stalagmites Reveal Glimpses of the Past

In Case You Missed It 🔑

Pill Takes the Bite Out of Viper Venom 🔑

Lidar Advances Show Mosquito Rush Hours

Blood Test Allows Safer Turtle Sex Determination

Invisible Qualities such as 'Hardness' Can Pinpoint Objects 🔑

Expanding Paved Areas Has an Outsize Effect on Urban Flooding 🔑

FORUM

Why Some Male Leaders Won't Follow COVID-19 Safety Protocols

THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH

Another Tragic Epidemic: Suicide

THE SCIENCE AGENDA

Too Many Black Americans Are Dying from COVID-19

RECOMMENDED

A New View of Sexual Harassment in the Sciences

ANTI GRAVITY

Our Temporary Moratorium against Handshakes Should Become Permanent

50, 100 & 150 YEARS AGO

50, 100 & 150 Years Ago: August 2020

GRAPHIC SCIENCE

Why Hurricane Names Are Retired

METER

Gravitational Waves and the Poetry of Blackfoot

OBSERVATORY

The False Logic behind Science Denial